The application has been amended as follows:

In the claims:

Claims 9, 18, 25, and 32 are canceled.

Claim 1, line 6, change "being operable to receive" to --- receives ---.

Claim 1, line 9, change "is further operable to determine" to --- determines ---.

Claim 1, line 13, after "overlaps", insert --- , wherein the first network element determines whether its relaying of the update will result in a redundant transmission by gleaning data associated with a selected one of an acknowledgement and a re-flood both of which are associated with the update, the acknowledgement and the re-flood being communicated by one or more non-overlapping neighbors ---.

Claim 7, line 2, delete --- substantially ---.

Claim 10, line 2, change "is operable to determine" to --- determines ---.

Claim 11, line 11, after "overlaps", insert --- ;

determining whether its relaying of the update by the first network element will result in a redundant transmission by gleaning data associated with a selected one of an acknowledgement and a re-flood both of which are associated with the update, the acknowledgement and the re-flood being communicated by one or more non-overlapping neighbors ---.

Claim 16, line 2, delete --- substantially ---.

Claim 19, line 10, after “overlaps”, insert --- ;

means for determining whether relaying of the update by the third network element will result in a redundant transmission by gleaning data associated with a selected one of an acknowledgement and a re-flood both of which are associated with the update, the acknowledgement and the re-flood being communicated by one or more non-overlapping neighbors ---.

Claim 26 (Currently Amended). A computer readable medium comprising computer software code such that when executed is operable to:

receive a first neighbor list from a first network element and a second neighbor list from a second network element; and determine one or more overlaps provided by the first and second neighbor lists when compared to a third neighbor list, a third network element relaying an update that it receives from the first network element based on the one or more overlap;.

determine whether relaying of the update by the third network element will result in a redundant transmission by gleaning data associated with a selected one of an acknowledgement and a re-flood both of which are associated with the update, the acknowledgement and the re-flood being communicated by one or more non-overlapping neighbors.

Reason for Allowance

Art Unit: 2616

2. Regarding claims 1-8, 10-17, 19-24, and 26-31, the prior art fails to teach or suggest an apparatus for communicating packets in a network environment, comprising a first network element that includes a first neighbor list, and being coupled to a second and a third network element, wherein the first network element determines whether its relaying of the update will result in a redundant transmission by gleaning data associated with a selected one of an acknowledgement and a re-flood both of which are associated with the update, the acknowledgement and the re-flood being communicated by one or more non-overlapping neighbors, in combination with other limitations, as specified in the independent claims 1, 11, 19, and 26.

3. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
